

Bonus 75 cents On Half Acreage

The acreage bonus for the grain growing farmers of the prairies will be on the basis of 75c an acre on half the cultivated area on any one farm, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said.

The bonus is part of the plan to freeze commodity prices and wages and will be in addition to any bonus the prairie farmers receive under the P.F.A.A.

No farmer may obtain the bonus on more than 200 acres. It will not be necessary for farmers who have put in claims under the P.F.A.A. because of crop failures to make additional claims for the new bonus. Seventy-five cents an acre will automatically be added to their other bonus.

Other farmers, however, will be required to put in their applications to the municipal clerk in their district and in the case of unorganized territories the application should go direct to the provincial officer in charge of the district.

WEDDINGS

TIGHE—GILLRIE

A pretty home wedding took place Saturday afternoon, Oct. 25th when Alice Victoria, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tighe became the bride of Mr. George Albert Gillrie eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Gillrie, Rev. J.M. Fawcett officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a floor length dress of white taffeta. Her veil was held in place by a coronet of flowers, and her bouquet was pink Talisman roses.

The bride's attendants were her two sisters, Miss Bernice Tighe, the bridesmaid was attired in blue taffeta, and carried pink carnations. Jessie Tighe, who made a charming flower girl, was dressed in pink satin and also carried pink carnations.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Kenton Gillrie.

After the ceremony a reception was held for 25 guests. The bride's table was centered with the wedding cake and white, pink and blue tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillrie motored to Banff for their honeymoon, the bride travelling in a teal blue frock with brown accessories. On their return they will reside at Didsbury.

Out of town guests included the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wait of Calgary.

KEARNEY—BROOKE

A very pretty wedding took place at the bride's home, west of Olds, when Miss Hanna Agnes, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Kearney was united in marriage to Stanley Heury, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brooke of Springside, Rev. A.L. Elliot of Olds, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away in marriage by her father, was attired in white satin with bridal veil and accessories and carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bridesmaid was Miss Mary McLeod, cousin of the bride, who wore a dress of powder blue silk crepe and carried a bouquet matching the brides.

Mr. Edward Hugh Brooke of Edmonton, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The wedding march was played by Miss Evelyn and Mr. Cyril Brooke.

After the ceremony a reception was held for about 40 guests and a delightful buffet lunch was served.

The happy couple will make their home on the farm at Springside.

BIBLE SOCIETY CHURCH SERVICES

Next Sunday Rev. A. A. Lytle, District Secretary of the South Alberta Auxiliary of the Bible Society will visit the district. He will speak at Davenport in the morning, at the M.B.C. Church in the afternoon, and in the Evangelical Church in the evening. At the close of the evening service members of the other churches, and everyone interested in the work of the Bible Society is asked to attend a meet in the Evangelical Church at 9 p.m. on Sunday to effect organization and make plans for the canvass of the town and district in the interests of the society.

Three Youths Killed Near Lacombe.

Three 18 year old boys from the College Heights district two miles northwest of Lacombe were instantly killed shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday when they were struck by a car on the Edmonton trail a mile north of Lacombe.

They were Walter Derr, William George Henner and Walter Ostercamp.

The driver of the car, D. S. Wilson who farms four miles north of there, stopped immediately after the impact. He told police that he was driving to Lacombe, and when he went into a dip in the road he met three vehicles. The first, a truck, dimmed its lights, but the second, another truck, and the third, a car, did not.

Blinded by the glare, Wilson said he did not see the three youths who were walking in front of him in the direction he was going until the last of the three were almost in contact with the car.

They Go Hunting.

Bert Fisher, Frank Hasselton, Jack McCloy, Jack Topley and Otto Mueller left early Monday morning for their annual hunting trip in the upper reaches of the Red Deer River.

This week they were after mountain sheep while next week they expect to bag a few moose and deer.

They went prepared to bring back a good load for they took two light deliveries and a coupe.

Remember Poppy Day!

Poppy Day marks the culmination each year of the efforts of disabled soldiers of the last war, who earn a livelihood making poppies and wreaths. It is the day when they bring before the people of Canada the results of their labours and through the Annual Poppy Campaign provide an opportunity for all of us to help thousands of other deserving veterans in distress.

The Poppy—emblem of Remembrance, and of hope and practical succor—is manufactured in Veteran Shops operated by the Dominion Government. It is offered to the general public to be worn and displayed on Remembrance Day. All who buy a poppy will recall those Canadians who gave their lives in the Battle for Freedom fought and won 23 years ago. They will also remember, and by their purchase of poppies help, the many still living who sacrificed body and livelihood for the things we hold dear.

Another generation has now taken the field in the battle for freedom. Some are already returning and they too, may be in need of a helping hand. Let the Poppy be an emblem of hope and succor to them also.

Poppy Day, 1941, has a deeper significance than any previous Poppy Day has ever had, and the Canadian Legion urges the people of Canada to buy poppies and wreaths in quantities as never before.

Please note that this week is your last chance to order your Remembrance Day wreath from the Legion. See the postmaster.

For Improved Highways

The deliberations in connection with the annual convention of the Good Roads Association must have served to bring to the attention of the people of this Dominion the great importance of roads to our economic life. The subject should be of pertinent interest to the residents of the three prairie provinces, as this section is notably behind the rest of Canada in the construction of paved roads.

The wide spaces of the west, together with the comparatively sparse population, have been important factors in bringing about this condition. Also the economic structure, as compared to some of the more densely populated sections, is another reason why the west may have lagged behind.

Notwithstanding this, much credit must be given to the highway administrators of the Western provinces for the manner in which they have carried on in the face of great difficulties during the years of depression. In the province of Saskatchewan, as an example, there is a total of 212,834 miles of roads, 5,764 miles being all weather roads, 155 miles are of bituminous treated gravel, the remainder being earth roads.

The Tourist Traffic

The construction of a paved highway from east to west across the three prairie provinces would naturally result in much greater tourist traffic. In addition to the immediate financial benefits from this source, it would also serve to bring about a better acquaintance with the other sections of our country as well as with our neighbors to the south of us. It would also serve to bring to the attention of outsiders some of the potentialities and great attractions of the west.

The national parks systems in the three prairie provinces offer many attractions for the tourist, while further west in British Columbia the scenic grandeur of the Rockies are too well known to need comment. It has been pointed out that a paved trans-Canada highway would enable east and west to reach a better understanding. To study each other's problems, and thus help to develop the much desired end of a more completely unified Canada.

Federal Assistance

While Canada is engaged in an all-out war effort there can be no thought of diverting funds to other than the vital necessities of war. We can, however, look to the post-war period when work for many will need to be provided after demobilization.

As a post-war policy the improvement of our roads could well receive attention. Road building to furnish employment for many of our service men and those who are at present engaged in war industries, would seem to offer at least a partial solution. The tentative policy which has been outlined at various times, appears to rule out any thought of the dole and in its place to substitute a program of public works as a better form of service to those who may be in need of assistance. If this plan was adopted the country at large would receive lasting benefits and there would be something tangible to show for any large expenditures of public monies.

It has been pointed out that Canada will have strong competition from European countries in securing tourist traffic from the United States after the war. Only by providing better roads and better facilities may we hope to attract tourists in desired numbers. The tourist traffic ranking as one of the most important sources of revenue in Canada, it would then appear reasonable to expect that the Federal Government will be prepared to lend every assistance possible when the days of peace towards which we so ardently look forward, may open up a brighter and happier era in this Canada of ours.

Will Do It Again

It is said that the Canadian expedition to Spitzbergen upset Nazi plans to use the island's coal for synthetic oil and gasoline manufacture. The Germans had conducted extensive experiments along that line. This is only one instance in which Canadians will balk the Nazi program when they get the chance.

Many astronomers agree that the possibilities of life are greater on the Galilean moons of Jupiter and the giant moon of Saturn than on any of the planets.

A Word For The Doctor

No life could be fuller, more worthwhile, than that of the doctor who spends his days among people who know him as he knows them. There is a completeness in his service not even excelled by the clergy. His days are devoted to the betterment of those among whom he lives and the man who can look back upon years of unselfish service in one locality has mastered the secret of a happy life. —Kitchener Record.

Feeling Pinch Of War

Restrictions On Some Foods In Egypt Have Been Necessary

Egypt, the fertile land of the Nile, is beginning to feel the pinch of food shortage. The situation is regarded in Cairo as not serious, but some restrictions have been found necessary and others probably will follow.

The country's normal exports to Europe have been halted by the war and the big British army there eats far more than Egypt ever imported.

Too, the wheat crop this year is below normal. As a result, some wheat will be imported and all bread now contains 15 per cent. rice flour by government decree.

There have been no potatoes on the market for weeks and some other vegetables also are scarce. The minister of supplies has proposed two meatless days each week to prevent the depletion of livestock.

SELECTED RECIPES

TOMATO JELLY

2 cups canned or fresh tomatoes
1/2 bay leaf, if desired
1/2 teaspoon salt
Stalk celery
Few grains Cayenne or pepper
1 envelope plain, unflavored gelatin
1 cup cold water
1 tablespoon mild vinegar or lemon juice
1 tablespoon onion juice.

Mix tomatoes, bay leaf, salt, celery and Cayenne or pepper and boil ten minutes. Soften gelatin in cold water. Add to hot mixture and stir until dissolved. Add vinegar and onion juice (extracted by grating onion). Strain and turn into molds that have been rinsed in cold water and chill. When firm, unmold on lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise or cooked dressing. Or the jelly may be cut into any desired shape and use as a garnish for salads or cold cuts. The juice of fresh tomatoes makes a delightful jellied salad.

Yield: Six servings.
Note: 1 1/2 cups tomato juice or tomato juice cocktail may be substituted for the canned or fresh tomatoes. 1/2 cup condensed tomato soup diluted with 1/4 cup water may also be substituted.

Remembered For Last Act

Marshal Petain's Historic Connection With Verdun Will Be Forgotten

Marshal Petain's tomb, according to his expressed wish, is eventually to be at Verdun, at Fort Douaumont, where the French soldiers made good his words: "They shall not pass." The place of the Marshal's burial is of no real importance, although the time of it might have been. But at this stage of his story we would remind Marshal Petain that he will not be remembered because of Verdun, no matter how imposingly he may be buried. He will be remembered, alas, because of Vichy. 1941 has swallowed up 1916. —New York Post.

Pilots From Norway

Over 90 Per Cent. Have Managed To Escape To Britain

When Prince Olav, the Norwegian Prime Minister and members of the Norwegian Government were guests of honor at a luncheon at the Dorchester, one of London's noted hotels, the British Broadcasting Corporation recording car was parked outside. The Dorchester stands in Park Lane, which, before the coming of motor buses, was the most exclusive and expensive residential street in London. To-day many of the handsome bow-fronted houses are scarred and shattered by bombs, but the Dorchester is still untouched. The glittering mirrors in the hall are not even cracked and the setting for this National Defence luncheon was as immaculate as that of any pre-war function. But the Norwegian guard of honor, fine husky men, many of whom had escaped from Norway at the risk of their lives to serve their Prince in Britain, was a vivid reminder of the war. Lord Nathan paid a richly deserved tribute to the part Norwegians were playing the war. Prince Olav, replying, told, most simply and modestly, some stories of hardships endured by some of his people in their spirited effort to follow their government to England. It is an impressive fact that over 90 per cent. of the Norwegian pilots have escaped from Norway since the occupation. Some crossed the North Sea in open boats; some crossed the mountains on skis into Sweden; some even went across Siberia. Volunteers from Norway are still flocking to the colors. Their one desire is to go back, armed, and drive the Germans out of their country. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Vast Reaches Of Russia Is Country Of Diversity Containing Many Elements

By Sir Bernard Pares

(Formerly Professor of Russian language, literature and history, later Director of School of Slavonic Studies at King's College.)

Russia is an extraordinarily interesting country owing to the diversity of the various nationalities—a hundred and eighty-five in all—that live there.

In the first Russian parliament in 1906 there were numbers of peasants, also priests, Orthodox or Catholic, and Mohammedan mullahs. As all non-Russian nationalities had been disregarded or suppressed by the government of the Tsars, they took a pride in appearing in their national costumes—the bright white cloak of a Polish peasant, or the flaming stripes of some Oriental from Asia.

The Russian army is full of variety and colors, with the long black felt cloaks and towering fur Caucasus, and many other picturesque uniforms, especially of the cavalry. In the population of some hundred and seventy millions there is one solid block of 78 millions which has given the direction to Russian history. It is called the Great-Russian, and is formed by a blend of Eastern Slavs with the various inserts or pockets of Finnish race which they found on their long road of eastern colonization.

The Slav dominated and absorbed the Finnish, which readily yielded to a superior culture and initiative; but the Finnish blend left its mark in the broad nose and stocky frame, and in the patience and perseverance of the Great-Russian peasant.

He lived for the most part in forests; he was often alone in his work and he could not know what surprise of man or beast might break out on him from behind any tree. This taught him wariness. He will be slow to express all his thoughts before a stranger, or still more before an official, and will always make his own reservation which, in Russia, are called his "back thoughts."

The Great-Russian has an extraordinary power of endurance, for his race has faced every kind of calamity, famine, epidemic, and Asiatic invasions.

The climate of Great-Russia, with its short, bright summer and its long dark winter, has taught him to work in great bursts, and he goes on for hours on end, knowing that there are long intervals ahead when work is impossible and he can live on his own thoughts or perhaps carve beautiful models of peasant workmanship.

The Great Russians live in the central and northern forests and are spread all over this huge country right away through the great forests of Siberia, till they become a kind of persistent trickle through non-Slav nationalities to the Arctic and the Pacific. They have given their language to the whole state, and as there is far less difference in Slavonic speech than in the speech of other great branches of the European family, it is easy, as I have done, to go from one end of the state to the other on Russian. That is a tremendously important factor in holding the whole state together. To the south, on the vast treeless plains from the Carpathians to the Volga, lives the next largest block of the population, about 25 millions of Ukrainians, or Borderlanders.

The Ukrainians are very closely related to the Great-Russians and speak among themselves in what is rather a dialect than a language. These people are also more individualists than the Great-Russians. The soil, though treeless, is the richest in Europe. The Ukrainians have never been wholly independent. They were long disputed between Russia and Poland, and they have sometimes allied themselves with foreign sovereigns—Swedish or Turkish—in search of greater freedom. At present, after long divisions, the Ukrainians are nearly all united in one state, the U.S.S.R., and they are one of the most important of its constituent republics.

Between Russia and Poland, around Minsk, where there is now so much fighting, lies a third smaller block of Slavs population, the White Russians, numbering about six or seven millions. These were always very backward people, living in marshy country, and Russia and Poland fought over them for centuries. At the present moment they are all united under Russia and are another of the constituent republics of the Soviet Union.

The great mountain barrier of the Caucasus which separates Europe from Asia and Russia from Turkey, has always been the scene of sharp turns of fortune and vicissitudes of history. Here seeking as much independence as is possible, cluster a number of small nationalities with languages of various origin. Here live the warlike and picturesque Georgians. Here, too, are the Armenians, commercially minded, who have always managed by wile and manoeuvre to survive centuries of the roughest oppression.

Another important element is the Tartar. All there are now recognized as constituent republics of the Soviet Union, and, apart from the question of religion, they suffer no disturbance to their language, culture and habits.

The Tartars, about 13 million in all, are found in larger numbers over the east of European Russia and in Central Asia. Once in the great epochs of the conquests of Genghis Khan, they were the conquerors and masters of all Russia and held it under a heavy tribute. Now they are quite peaceful people, hard workers who simply ask to be left to themselves as much as possible. They are Mohammedans, like many others of the eastern peoples of Russian Asia and they have centres of civilization of their own on the Volga and in Central Asia.

All over the Russian state there are about six million Jews. They had a wretched time under the Tsars, being deprived of all national rights. The Soviet Union at once swept away all the restrictions that had been imposed upon them.

In Central Asia and in Siberia there are populations which hardly even knew themselves to be peoples until the Soviet Government gave them alphabets of their own.

The Tsars turned a blind eye not only on these but on all national units except the Great-Russians. They were officially described under an opprobrious name which means "home aliens" and were not allowed to have languages of their own.

There is no brighter side of Soviet administration than its attitude to all its minor nationalities, and its work among them has given it a whole new army of efficient young administrators always training the backward peoples to produce their own.

Did Not Impress Him

Famous Russian Novelist Had His Opinion About Coney Island

When Maxim Gorky, famous Russian novelist and reformer, visited America, he was taken to Coney Island by friends who wanted him to behold this huge playground swarming with holiday throngs. They took him through the crowded concessions where he saw one dizzy contraption after another swinging people through the air, swirling them in eccentric curves, shooting them down breathtaking inclines. They took him underground and overground into bewildering mazes, museums, palaces of jugglers, theatres. They were giving Maxim Gorky the time of his life. Finally at the end of what may have seemed to them a perfect day, they asked him how he had liked it. He was silent for a moment. Then he said, very simply, "What a sad people you must be!"

Make of this what you will: At the Salina (Kansas) fair, a lady won a rolling pin throwing contest, and in a later event her husband won first prize in the 100-yard dash.

Eight million galley slaves would be required to propel the liner Queen Mary.

Not A Pleasure Trip

But Bomber Will Get You Across Atlantic In A Hurry

R. K. Carnegie, staff writer of the Canadian Press, does not recommend flying across the Atlantic in a bomber as a pleasure trip, says the Peterborough Examiner. Their chief claim for consideration is that "they will get you across the Atlantic in a terrific hurry."

Before the passenger gets on he has to sign a paper, the meaning of which is that if anything goes wrong the passenger has no way of obtaining redress. That is not unusual as reporters have often had to sign similar papers when going into places where they might get hurt.

On ocean lines they will not sell gum in the tuck shops because they do not wish it to be parked afterward beneath chairs and so on. The person going on a bomber is advised to chew it, and to use ear plugs or other material to plug the ears against the roaring of four huge motors. There is also the instruction to move about as little as possible as there is not much space. Some of the beds are set up high so that those who have to move about can crawl under, and Mr. Carnegie says if a passenger has not crawled for some time he will soon begin doing it on a bomber.

Then it is necessary to have a flying suit with a parka on the top which comes over the head. It is a warm and well-stuffed thing, and it is needed because the air is likely to be just around the freezing point, and there are no radiators on which one can sit and there is no stove against which one can prop the feet for warmth.

Elsewhere there are mattresses on the floor for those who wish to sleep—or try to sleep. Mr. Carnegie says on one trip seven crawling passengers took two trips apiece over him during the night. No one talks because it would not be possible to hear on account of the roar of the motors. One merely lies on the mattress and waits for the end of the trip. But it gets you there in a hurry, and it brings you back the same way.

Isolate Cold Germ

Hope To Be Able To Immunize People Against Influenza

Dr. E. H. Cluver, director of the South African Institute of Medical Research, said that his researchers were certain they had isolated the organism that causes the epidemic form of influenza.

"Work still remains to be done," he said. "It is necessary to carry out counter checks to satisfy the scientific world."

"But, having isolated the organism, we hope to grow it in our laboratory, then prepare a vaccine with which we hope to immunize people against the epidemic form of influenza, just as people are immunized against diphtheria."

He said earlier research by the Rockefeller Institute had put his researchers on the track of the germ, by identifying it as a filterable virus.

Science Has Aided In The Solution Of Problems In Canadian War Industry

Prefers Simple Food

But Oscar Of The Waldorf Has Catered To Expensive Tastes

The perfect family dinner, says Oscar of the Waldorf, should include a soup, a fish, a meat like lamb or beef, potatoes, a green vegetable, a salad if you can get the folks to eat it, and a delicious dessert.

Oscar, who turns 75 this month, should know because he has almost 50 years of catering to celebrities to his credit. Personally he prefers boiled beef and cabbage.

Oscar Tschirky is the kind of big business executive who always keeps a fresh red rose on his office desk, has his office walls lined with photographs of his prominent friends, obeys his secretary who makes sure he sees visitors. He personally approves every menu for the hotel as he has done since it started.

But Oscar also has learned to comb his hair neatly and effectively to hide the hairless spot above his forehead. He is a fond father and about the proudest grandfather you ever saw—he has two children and two grandchildren.

Oscar got to New York the day before the Brooklyn Bridge was opened. He became a citizen as fast as he could get his papers. He was a lot like American boys, even to model-making. He won first prize with a miniature Swiss chalet he made out of cigar boxes with modern electric and special tools.

This year Oscar is copying the chalet model full-size out on his 1,000-acre New York farm where there is a big house and a little house. It's the little one he likes best and he's renovating it to resemble the chalet in Switzerland where he was born.

Oscar says no party for potentate or popular hero ever outdid his own golden wedding celebration when the guest list looked like a who's who of fame and fortune. It was the biggest moment of his life because big folk found time to pay homage to his home and family. The menu was something to write home about and included the Waldorf salad which he invented and the wild rice which he first introduced to the American diet.

Time Of Testing

"We face a greater test of fortitude than that which, in all our proud and progressive history, it has been our privilege and pride to meet and to overcome. If, at any time, we Canadians have had need to repress the selfish, the fearful and the negative in our characters, surely it must be now," Major-General H. D. G. Crerar, chief of the general staff.

H.E.H. the Nizam of Hyderabad state in India has offered a contribution of 20 lakhs ($675,000) for the building of a corvette.

At hundreds of points the guiding and exploring hands of science touch the Canadian war effort, directing it into new channels and keeping it rolling straight along the routes already mapped out for it.

Through the National Research Council, the organization set up to bring scientific knowledge and ingenuity to the solution of industrial problems, Canadian industry has been aided in its march into new fields of production of weapons, munitions, machinery and appliances of many kinds.

The full story of this will be told, if at all, when peace returns to the world. The achievements of science in relation to war are among the most closely-guarded of military secrets. Thus scientists who turn their genius to the aid of their country in war must labor without the public recognition which comes to men who do comparable work in peacetime.

In the laboratories and shops of the National Research Council, senior officers are devoting the major part of their time to war problems suggested or demanded by the Department of National Defence, Munitions and Supply, or other government departments. A great deal of work is being done on secret projects in co-operation with the fighting services and corresponding scientific laboratories in Great Britain. In anticipation of wartime needs, a gauge-testing laboratory was organized and equipped to take care of the demands that were certain to come. Equipment was purchased while it could still be had, with the result that in a few months a well-trained staff of gauge examiners and adequately equipped laboratories were available.

When a government contract is let and the manufacturer starts to work the council checks and certifies the gauges used by government inspectors in determining the suitability of the finished product for their requirement.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 different types of gauges have already been certified for the inspection of munitions and 100 people are employed constantly in designing and checking these delicate instruments of measurement.

Another 100 research workers are engaged on radio apparatus but the results of their work are among the secrets of war.

One of the smaller but useful contributions of the council to the war effort was to find a means of dyeing sections of the completed parachutes so as to make them clearly visible from above. It was decided this would be a good thing for if a flier bailed and landed in snow it would enable the fliers searching for him to spot the parachute, otherwise invisible against the white snow.

The problem involved a search for the most suitable color and an investigation of the best method of applying the selected color to the many parachutes which had already been manufactured. This was done by textile experts of the Research Council.

A close liaison is maintained between the National Research Council and governmental research agencies in the United States and Great Britain. A constant exchange of information proceeds between Ottawa, London and Washington.

In effect the scientific resources of the three countries are pooled so far as their application of methods and instruments of warfare are concerned.

An Unusual Occupation

English Woman Has Collected Spider Fibre For 57 Years

Miss Mary Pfeiffer has completed her 52nd year of relieving spiders of their fibre, which is used to help win wars. The fibre is used in making cross hairs for range finders and bomb sights. Each summer she sends children into the fields and barns near London to find spiders. Miss Pfeiffer seizes the spiders with tweezers, flings them into the air and the spiders start spinning and continues until they land.

Wheat Growers' Financial Condition

The Research Department of the Searle Grain Company estimates that the revenue which will accrue to prairie wheat growers for wheat alone this year will be approximately 100 million dollars for the sale of wheat, 30 million dollars acreage bonuses and 10 million dollars for P. F. R. A. bonuses or a total of about 140 million dollars. Naturally this is but an estimate, for no one can tell the full extent of the damage done by the recent rains, neither can anyone forecast the amount of wheat that will be used for animal feed.

The same revenue for wheat alone which our wheat growers received last year, we calculate was 234 million dollars (in 1928 the revenue from wheat alone was 441 million dollars). It will be seen, therefore, that our wheat growers will receive 94 million dollars less this year than they received last.

Those who are producing substantial amounts of coarse grains for sale at the elevators, or those who are producing livestock and livestock products, will of course enjoy considerable additional revenue which added together may total more than the income from wheat. This extra revenue for coarse grains and livestock does not however, assist those farmers who depend mainly or entirely upon wheat alone for their income and it so happens that there are large numbers of just such farmers. We suggest, therefore, that in all fairness the situation of the wheat growers should be considered by itself, and on its own merits. The reduction of 94 million dollars in revenue from last year is very serious indeed, for it certainly means that our wheat growers will have little if any money at all left over for payment of their debts and so forth, after they have paid their bare living and production expenses.

Our wheat growers, it must never be forgotten have made a most important contribution toward the winning of this war by making available a large quantity of high quality wheat, so that the war efforts of Canada, Great Britain and their allies are not likely to be hampered by the lack of bread, and this is a most important advantage that the Allies have over the Nazis and their Allies. If we wish to estimate the true military value of our wheat surplus, we have only to consider in our minds what Hitler would give for our wheat surplus if he could get it.

Taking all this into consideration, therefore, and with all due courtesy and respect, we take the liberty of suggesting to our government that our prairie wheat growers are entitled to more assistance than at this moment of writing they are to receive.

More Eggs Per Bird

If each laying hen in Alberta were to lay 20 eggs more per year, about 300,000 additional cases of eggs would be available. This would mean a lot in filling Canada's commitments to Great Britain.

The British Ministry of Foods have asked Canada to supply 1,000,000 cases of eggs, 30 dozen to the case, by May 31st, 1942 and large additional quantities will be needed in the fall of 1942. There is a definite need for eggs which will tax Canada's productive capacity.

Better feeding and management of the poultry flock will raise the average production of 110 eggs per bird to 130 eggs per laying hen.

Poultry producers will be contributing to the war effort and to their

Cancer Clinics Have Major Role.

The Alberta provincial government has opened cancer clinics at Calgary and Edmonton. Each clinic is manned by a surgeon, a physician, a radiologist and a pathologist.

The Alberta Branch of the Canadian Society for the Control of Cancer has offered its wholehearted co-operation to the Provincial Cancer Clinics and the Director of the Clinics has graciously accepted.

The patients attending the clinics must first be examined by their family physicians and if the case is one in which there is some doubt as to the diagnosis, or if the case exhibits signs of early cancer, the patient may be referred to the clinic for examination. An application form, fully filled out, must accompany the patient. Treatment by X-rays or radium, free of charge to the patient is provided when indicated. The members of the cancer clinic have the sole right to decide which patient shall have X-ray and radium treatments. The cancer clinics intend to arrange for treatment for those cancer cases only which offer some hope of cure from radiotherapy.

Canada Spending Liberally.

Canada is spending 46 cents of every dollar she produces in the war effort while less than 20 of the United States national income is being spent on defence.

30 Girls Take Oath For Active Service.

A solemn oath of allegiance, which makes them formally enrolled members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, was taken at the Armouries Saturday morning by 30 young women. The oath marks the end of their probationary period of service.

The 30 young women were formed up in one of the lecture rooms at the Armouries at 10 o'clock. Other members of the corps who have not yet completed their period of probation were lined up around the walls.

The help of every Canadian is needed for Victory. In these days of war the thoughtless, selfish spender is a traitor to our war effort. A reduction in personal spending is now a vital necessity to relieve the pressure for goods, to enable more and more labour and materials to be diverted to winning the war. The all-out effort, which Canada must make, demands this self-denial of each of us.

New Color Scheme for Alta License Plates.

Alberta color combinations on the motor license plates for the new license year which opens April 1st will be white numerals on a blue background, according to information received by officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

It has been several years since this combination has been used in this province. Part of next year's supply has already been delivered to the provincial government, as the order for plates was made in 1940. The province took the precaution of filing an order early when it was indicated that manufacturers might have difficulty in obtaining material for plates owing to war conditions.

While there have been suggestions from some states that it is intended to adopt a permanent plate, it is not likely that the province of Alberta will take such action.

New School for Potential Airforce Recruit.

Vermilion Agricultural School, Provincial centre that was made available to the Department of National Defence, will be opened as a tuition centre for potential pilots and observers in the R.C.A.F., it was announced this week.

Flight Lieut. Harry E. Jones, recruiting officer, stated that such young men lacking required educational standing will be given an intensive 18 week's course.

"The Royal Canadian Air Force will give a potential pilot or observer free education and pay his living expenses," said Lieut. Jones.

Qualifications for admittance are: two years high school or 35 credits; medical air crew pass; between 17 years and 8 months and 33 years.

Men living at home will receive $7 a week; those boarding $9; and for married men, $12. Courses start Nov. 18.

The World of Wheat

Some people blame the economic system known as "laissez-faire" for the accumulation of the Canadian wheat surplus, and so for the present low wheat price.

By "laissez-faire" is meant that order which for long we had become used to, and by which merchants sold the farmer's products on the markets of the world, and brought back to farmers in exchange the goods and commodities made by city people; and all without any undue interference by Governments. The fact, however, that wheat markets have been lost and a wheat surplus has accumulated is definite evidence, allege those people, that the system of "laissez-faire" has broken down, and so must be replaced by a so-called "planned economy."

The truth is that it is not "laissez-faire" that has failed, but that the governments with their policies of high tariffs, quotas and other restrictions to international trade, have interfered with that healthy system of "laissez-faire" and so made it impossible for merchants to perform their proper functions.

What is needed, therefore, is not the abolishing of "laissez-faire," but rather the abolishing of those tariff walls and other ingenious interferences with legitimate trade, that have prevented "laissez-faire" from functioning in the interests of farmers and of all of us.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Trade reports indicate huge quantities of U.S. and Canadian wheat have been damaged by rain. Cold weather has caused considerable damage to wheat crops in Argentina. Persistent rains have caused serious crop losses in Ontario. Further restrictions have been imposed on the sale of wheat and flour in Japan.

Factors tending to lower price: The Canadian Government has stabilized the prices of wheat and coarse grains at maximum levels reached between Sept. 15 and Oct. 11 of this year. Unfavorable war news from Europe and unsettled conditions in the Orient continue to depress North American wheat prices. Reliable reports indicate increased acreage in winter crops in the U.K. and Europe.

Farmers to Secure Sample Certificate Soon

All growers who contemplate selling their crops for seed are reminded that they must receive a control sample Certificate according to A. T. Sinclair, Cereal Specialist, Field Crops Branch, Department of Agriculture.

To obtain this certificate it is necessary to submit a cleaned sample, representative of the bulk of seed for sale, to the Plants Products Division in the Immigration Building, Calgary.

The following is the required size of sample and the fee for cereals and forage crop:

(a) Cereals (wheat, oats, barley, rye) peas, beans, corn, buckwheat and field root and vegetable seeds; a one pound sample accompanied by a fee of 75c.

(b) Forage crops, alfalfa, clover, agricultural grasses and mixtures of these; a four ounce sample accompanied by a fee of $1.00.

Since it requires about one month to secure a Control Sample Certificate it is advisable to submit your sample as soon as possible in order that there will be no delay when the seed is ready for sale.

The law requires that seed sold must conform with the standard of quality of the sample submitted. Growers should, therefore, not submit hand-picked samples which would be of a higher quality than that cleaned with the ordinary seed cleaner.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Chief Edward Gamble of the Kitgalla Indian Band, Skeena River, B.C., sent $100 to the United Kingdom High Commissioner in Canada towards prosecution of the war.

The ministry of food announced Britain's stocks of wheat and sugar have "reached a state where it is no longer necessary to build up any more reserves."

Italian and German prisoners from submarines captured or sunk in the Middle East have arrived in Australia. Many of the prisoners were described as young and merely boys.

Gen. W. Anders, commander-in-chief of the new Polish army which is being formed in Russia, will soon have three divisions staffed and organized, Victor Podoski, Polish consul-general, was informed.

Canadian industrial employment reached an all-time high when 12,577 establishments reported a working force of 1,605,580 persons at Aug. 1, the Dominion bureau of statistics has reported.

Total value of contracts awarded and commitments made by the department of munitions and supply on Canadian, United Kingdom, and other account now is nearly $2,600,000,000, the department announced.

Employees of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation airplane division, making planes for Britain and the United States, will send 10,000 packages of cigarettes to soldiers of the Russian, British, Polish and French armies.

Gold Shipments

Swelling Volume Of Precious Metal To United States

In one week of September more than $5,651,000 in gold came here from Russia. The announcement from the Department of Commerce does not cite the interesting fact that the Soviet Union has probably led other European countries this year in shipments of gold to the United States.

An exception may be made of the receipt of $278,000,000 in gold from Canada in the first half of this year, much of it probably coming originally from the United Kingdom. In the first six months of 1941 Russia's exports of gold to America were almost double those of the corresponding period of last year.

The only other considerable increases have been recorded in gold shipments from certain South American countries and from the Union of South Africa. The swelling volume of precious metal in Fort Knox is augmented by a flow that travels long distances. New York Sun.

Just An Honorary Post

Prime Minister Churchill New Lord Warden Of Cinque Ports

Prime Minister Churchill has been appointed lord warden for the Cinque Ports, but will not be installed or take up residence at Walmer Castle until after the war. He succeeds the late Lord Willington, former Governor-General of Canada. The post, an honorary one, carries no salary, and no uniform is provided. It might well be regarded as a liability, as the holder must pay rates on the official residence. The original Cinque Ports are Hastings, Sandwich, Dover, Romney and Hythe. In the old days they were entrusted with the defence of Britain's shores and the protection of passage to the Continent. After the Norman conquest, Winchelsea and Rye were added but retained the title of "the two ancient towns."

Gratuities Given To British Workers Added To Income

Waitresses, chambermaids, commissionaires and others in similar jobs will now have to pay income tax on their tips since their total incomes come within the new low income schedules.

Apple-Shaped in Red Gingham

A welcome gift or a sizzling seller at your club's bazaar—these jolly pot-holders.

You can make a dozen at a time, apple-shaped ones of red checked gingham and, in the same easy way, wild-rose shapes in pink gingham. Their green binding is smart color contrast and in a loop at the top makes a perky little stem!

Draw the outline of an apple to fill a 6-inch square of paper and from this outline cut the back and front of the pot-holder.

Then cut several layers of flannel the same size, for padding, and sew all together with quilting stitches, as our sketch shows. Bind edges of holder with 1/2-inch binding.

Another grand gift (which will sell at bazaars like hot cakes, too) is a pair of Mexican bookends—really just two bricks covered with felt, on which you glue colorful felt figures, a fat donkey and a Mexican in his sombrero. Easy with directions!

Our 32-page booklet tells in detail how to make the clever Mexican bookends and pot-holders. Has attractive gifts easily made from materials on hand—vanity table, bathroom utility box, bookrack table, many other pretty items.

SHIRTWAIST FROCK FOR JUNIORS

By Anne Adams

Junior special! This shirtwaist frock with its "peasant" look is designed by Anne Adams and is a perfect style for back-to-school wear. Pattern 4878 will be easy for Mother to make, especially with the help of the illustrated Sewing Instructor. The skirt is made in four sections, gathered into a bias waist-band back and front. Bias, too, are the unusually shaped yoke and the cuffs on the short puff sleeves. Gathers below the yoke give fullness to the bodice, and a little Peter Pan collar adds a youthful air. For winter wear you can make the sleeves full-length, gathered into a narrow wristband. Make up this frock in a sprightly checked gingham or use contrast for yoke, sleevebands and collar—so gay!

Pattern 4878 is available in girls' sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 12 takes 4 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Surplus Shown By CBC

Annual Report Shows Net Operating Surplus Of $183,585

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation had a net operating surplus of $183,585 during the year ended last March 31, it was shown in the CBC's annual report, submitted to War Services Minister Thorson by Rene Morin, chairman of the board of governors.

A summary of income and expenditures, signed by General Manager Gladstone Murray and Treasurer Harry Baldwin, listed income of $4,092,794 and expenditures of $3,909,209.

By far the largest income item was the $3,140,209 received in radio license fees. Commercial broadcasting brought in $895,066, while subsidiary hook-ups gave income of $44,647.

Expenditures on programmes totalled $1,721,755, station network $725,969 and engineering $746,154.

The surplus of $183,585 remained after allowances for depreciation of fixed assets and equipment.

The report described institution of its own news service Jan. 1 this year as "a major step in the development of the CBC."

The report said the overseas programme unit, which had been increased to six men, had "not suffered any serious damage by enemy bombing," although there had been "one or two close calls and several holes in the truck (mobile unit) have been made by bomb splinters and shrapnel."

National Film Society

President Of Manitoba University Elected Head Of Society

Dr. Sydney Smith, president of the University of Manitoba, was re-elected president of the National Film Society of Canada at the annual meeting in Ottawa. Charles G. Cowan of Ottawa and Victor Dore, superintendent of education for Quebec, were re-elected vice-presidents.

The secretary, O. C. Wilson, reported that films distributed by the society were shown to an aggregate audience of 405,000 persons in 1940, compared with 177,000 in 1939. In the first six months of 1941 the number was 256,000.

This year the society instituted a free loan service for distribution of British council, Australian government, United States government and Canadian films.

Mr. Wilson said only three branches were operating this year, at Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa.

Britain Collecting Evidence Regarding Those Responsible For Cruelty

The British government announced it is collecting evidence regarding Germans who may be responsible for murder, oppression and cruelties to hostages and others in German-occupied territories.

Richard Law, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons that the government had the subject of punishment for such individuals under consideration and that the foreign office was discussing the matter with allied governments.

"These actions are not passing unnoticed either in the countries where they occur or in this country," he said.

War Emergency

Training Labor For War Industries In Canada

Canada, dipping deep into her reserves of labor to man increasingly busy factories, has also extended labor training programmes, to an extent unknown in the past, labor department officials said.

War emergency training programme reports that 33,003 persons took training from April 1 to Aug. 30. The 93 schools and training centres reported 10,063 were actually in training on Aug. 1.

In the industrial classes, discharged soldiers of the present war are receiving training alongside veterans of the first Great War, officials said.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

RADIO FURNISHES HEALTH NEWS

Radio plays promoted by the Health League of Canada are now being heard in the Grades 7 and 8 class rooms of the Moose Jaw public schools, it was stated by Dr. Gordon Bates, Director of the League. A letter notifying Dr. Bates to this effect adds that arrangements are being made to extend the service to the lower grades in the near future.

The action in Moose Jaw was taken at the instance of the radio station concerned; but Dr. Bates stated that Ministers of Education in all provinces will be approached with a view to attracting further interest to this method of disseminating health education for children.

The plays in question present dramatic episodes in the lives of great medical scientists and reformers, and are designed to promote a Dominion-wide public health program in the interests of greater Canadian health and efficiency, it was stated.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Wong here! Devona realized she'd taken a step backward, stood staring now at the Oriental's face, dazedly fumbling for an answer to this confusion. In the same instant, she saw recognition flicker across that passive face, flame for the space of a thought, then die back into that impenetrable mask.

"What is it, please?" That clipped British accent!

Wong, all right. And he knew who she was. And was pretending he didn't.

Pushing terror aside, she found her voice.

"I'm Dona Carlotta, from the El Mexicano. Mr. Macias asked me to call for a package," she replied, automatically repeating the little speech she'd planned.

It probably wouldn't work now. Not with Wong's knowing who she really was—knowing, too, probably, that she wasn't in Macias' confidence.

Amazingly enough, he nodded. The repellent, yellow-skinned face disappeared from the narrow opening, and a key turned gratefully in the lock. Then the door swung open.

Wong stepped aside. "Come in, please."

Devona thrust aside an impulse to turn back, fly down those steps to the waiting taxi. But—and she bolstered her flagging courage—anything worth doing at all took a little daring. No real harm could come to her. After all, she could still still claim innocence, ignorance even. Besides, having come this far—

Wong closed the door behind her, led the way down the hall at that same little dog-trot, to the last of the closed doors. Opening it, he snapped on a light, stood aside.

"Wait here, please."

"Thank you," she stepped past him into the tiny room.

Behind her, the door closed again with a rasp. Then she heard Wong's footsteps fade down the hall again. Somewhere a door opened, voices rose faintly then were cut off again as the door closed.

Devona, her knees threatening real mutiny now, sagged into a chair, sat clutching her bag, straining her ears for any sound.

She waited for what seemed hours while realization of her own foolhardiness grew alarmingly. She'd been insane not to report her suspicions to the police or to Dale himself. Because, she argued now, if this were really legitimate business of Macias', she'd have a hard time explaining her interference. And if it weren't—how could she hope to outsmart underworld professionals when Dale himself couldn't do it?

She'd been mad to come. A silly romantic notion that she could play heroine in Dale's serious drama. Heroine! She'd probably only bungled her chance to be of some real help now. And what with Wong's recognizing her now and—

She stood up, crossed quickly to the door. She'd slip out right now before she'd got any further involved. Because any moment now and he would be back with—

Her hand turned on the door-knob. First to left. Then to the right. She pulled again. Stuck! No—the door was—locked!

But it couldn't be! Frantically she twisted it back and forth, leaned one slim shoulder against the door.

Then, turning, she raced to the one narrow window, flung up the blind. Less than 10 feet below a narrow strip of sidewalk led from the street beyond. Her shaking fingers tore at the old-fashioned rusted bolt. But there was no turning it. Some one had carefully and effectively nailed the window shut. Nails, she noticed, panicky now, that were shiny new.

She tried the door again, felt a scream rising to her lips, terror clawing at her last fleeing wit. Then, abruptly, she stiffened, forced herself to return to the rickety chair, sit down calmly.

But it was hard to keep from crying out when footsteps sounded in the hall again, drew nearer rapidly. Then a key turned and the door opened. She had to bite her lips to keep back a treacherous little scream as Wong stepped into the room again.

"Sorry to keep you waiting, miss," he said as calmly as if this were his mother's Palm Springs hacienda and she had sent him on some trivial errand.

She heard her own voice, strangely cool. "Oh, that's all right."

"Here is the package." He handed her what looked like a white shoe box.

Tucking it under one arm, she pulled on her gloves with deliberation that amazed even herself. "Thank you."

"Was that all?"

Something flickered across his face. Devona wasn't sure but that it was a half smile. That, even more than the locked door, told her she wasn't yet out of danger.

"Yes. Thank you. And now—"

Boldly she stepped past him toward the shadowy hall. If he moved to stop her, she decided, she'd run.

Wong slipped past her now, opened the door with a flourish.

"Thank you," she murmured, forced herself to walk down the front steps calmly.

Then, drawing a long breath of the salty air, she suppressed a hysterical little giggle. Here she was—she congratulated herself—and fairly ran down the walk to the car waiting at the curb. So far, so—

She stopped short.

The car waiting for her at the curbing—was not a taxi!

For a moment she stared at it. No advertisement emblazoned on its door. No uniformed driver opening the door. Instead, the man behind the wheel of the long black coupe was her exultant collapsed to cold, clammy fear—Jose Macias!

"Well," he said calmly, "fancy finding you here, Dona."

She couldn't speak, couldn't even breathe. She only stood there, staring, stricken.

"Won't you get in?" he invited, flung open the door. "I'll drive you—wherever you're going."

"This is my taxi—"

"I took the liberty of dismissing him. Too bad you didn't tell me you wanted to come down here, Dona," he said blandly. "I gave you every opportunity to ask me to bring you, remember?"

He smiled—knowingly.

Devona felt her last prop dissolve under her. So he'd known all along. He'd let her come down here—walk into this—trap!

Scream, should she? Call for help? But—she glanced up and down the deserted, darkened street—what help would there be here? If she resisted now, even the little game would be over. Her best chance was to postpone the showdown until the odds were a little more evenly divided.

"Thank you so much"—and she stepped into the car.

Macias climbed in beside her, started the coupe's powerful motor deftly, guided the long car down the narrow street.

For awhile, they skirted the lighted highways, kept to back streets that wound sinuously through shadows, past towering buildings steeped in darkness. Macias drove rapidly, but carefully, giving his whole attention to their strangely devious route.

Finally they turned into a blazing thoroughfare. Devona released a little sigh of relief. At least there were crowds here—people, policemen, bystanders who might come to her rescue if she needed it.

Not that Macias would give her any opportunity to summon help. He'd speeded up now. They traveled rapidly from one traffic signal to the next, his rate timed to strike the green lights consistently. And—she glanced at the speedometer—at a rate that would make it impossible to leap from the moving car!

Still holding the white shoe box in her lap, any number of plans presented themselves to her feverishly searching mind. Throw it out the window toward the first uniformed officer she saw? Try to get it open long enough to see, to take from it one of the smaller square boxes she was sure it contained? Convincing evidence if she could get it. Assuming, of course, the very improbable event of her being able to get the evidence out into hands where it would do any good.

As if he'd followed her thinking, Macias reached quietly for the white box. "I'll relieve you of that, Dona. Thanks a lot for bothering your pretty head."

Calmly, he tossed it onto the shelf behind their heads, smiled at her a moment before his attention went back to the street ahead.

There wasn't a chance that he'd believe any story she fabricated now, she realized, her hands clenched in her lap. He'd realized that that phone call had been her clue. He'd actually let her think she was getting away with something, trailed her down here to-night deliberately, to that grim little house on Front St. Even Wong had been in on the little stunt. It was all clear enough.

Just what the next move in this game was to be—that was the baffling, terrifying part. If only she'd had the good sense to tell some one—even Manuel—that something was up.

But not a soul knew where she was. No one would even miss her until to-morrow morning. Tal would call her hotel then. The desk clerk would report "No answer." Tal might not even then become alarmed, thinking she'd gone out for early breakfast, or shopping—or something. He might not call for hours after that!

They flashed by a neon-lighted clock tower. One twenty-five. Tal wouldn't call until 8 in the morning at the earliest. Unless he discovered she hadn't been in her room all night, he probably wouldn't become alarmed until noon. At the very best it was six hours and a half before she could hope for any help from that direction.

Grimly she set her lips. Six hours and a half! Maybe longer. And that would be too late! Much too late!

Balanced-Diet Bread

Detroit Bakery Has Good Sales Points For New Loaf

The many sales points that can be urged on behalf of a loaf of bread are indicated in the promotion of a new loaf undertaken by a Detroit bakery. The loaf's economy appeal was emphasized by comparing its cost with other foods containing similar vitamin and mineral enrichment. A ten-cent loaf, for example, was said to possess the same carbohydrate content as 42 cents worth of apples; protein content of 25 cents worth of eggs; calcium content of 29 cents worth of cottage cheese; vitamin B1 content of 66 cents worth of calf's liver; iron content of 83 cents worth of spinach. The bakery recommended that two slices of this "balanced-diet" bread be consumed with every meal.—Marketing, Toronto.

World-Famous Laboratory

Since Nazis Invaded Paris Its Fate Is In Doubt

In May, 1940, a month before the Nazi invasion of France, the famous Pasteur Institute in Paris announced the discovery of a serum against dysentery. The importance of this discovery was classed with that of the anti-tetanus and anti-cholera serums. But now that the Nazis are in Paris, there is apprehension as to the fate of this world-famous laboratory. It is well known that through the brutal application of their silly race theory, the Nazis have robbed German science of much talent, and it is feared that the work of the Pasteur Institute is now being menaced.—Toronto Star.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

OPPORTUNITY PRESENT

The day is always his who works in it with sincerity and great aims.—Emerson.

It is common to overlook what is near by keeping the eye fixed on something remote.—Samuel Johnson.

If one would be successful in the future, let him make the most of the present.—Mary Baker Eddy.

For truth and duty it is ever the fitting time who waits until circumstances completely favor his undertaking, will never accomplish anything.—Luther.

It is in man and not in his circumstances that the secret of his destiny resides.—Carlyle.

Every duty brings its peculiar delight, every denial its appropriate compensation, every thought its recompense—very cross its crown; pay goes with performance as effect with cause.—Mildmay.

Two hundred "clock stars" are used to check constantly naval observatory time.

Here's Easy Time-Tested Way To Get Relief

Get after those distressing spells of coughing and ease misery of the cold the widely used Vicks VapoRub. Boil some water. Pour it into a bowl. Add a good spoonful of Vicks VapoRub. Then breathe in the steaming medicinal vapors. With every breath you take VapoRub's medication soothes irritation, quiets coughing, helps clear head and breathing passages. FOR ADDED RELIEF... At bedtime rub Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest and back. Its poultice-vapor action works to bring you comfort while you sleep.

Low Standard Of Health

Military Training Shows Many Youths Of Canada Physically Unfit

The statement by Major-General LaFleche that compulsory military training has revealed a "disappointing" state of health among Canada's youth draws special attention to a long-term condition in Canada to which not enough realistic attention has been paid. It is proof of failure on the part of parents, school authorities and medical authorities to take corrective action to a sufficient degree during the boyhood of these youths who are now found to be physically unfit. A certain number are congenitally poorly equipped physically, but in a large percentage of cases it is doubtless the fact that treatment and training would have made the difference between their present medical category and A1.

The Associate Deputy Minister for National War Services urged that the situation be viewed as a war problem, and also one for post-war attention. Life after the war would not be easy; strong, virile men would be needed then, as today, said General LaFleche. This is indeed true. The fact that there are "too many imperfect men" in Canada does no credit to the nation.

More attention to juvenile health and strength would mean less hospitalization, less unemployment in later life. There has been complaint of the waste of Canada's natural resources, but a graver waste is that of Canada's human resources.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

Sabotage Movement

Paper Contends Time Is Ripe For This Campaign

A mighty "S" movement—"S" for sabotage would complete and intensify Britain's "V" for Victory campaign, says "Die Zeitung," anti-Nazi newspaper published in London. The paper, contending the time was ripe for such a campaign, said the effects of an "S" offensive carried out vigorously would shatter the shaky spirits of German troops. It suggested that inhabitants of the occupied countries would be taught to "burn," "wreck" and "blow up" by radio talks and leaflet raids.

The word "mausoleum" is derived from reference to the building erected in honor of Mausolus by his wife.

Defence Department Using Classified Advertizing

A circular to the army from the Department of National Defence has this to say:

"If you want men advertise in the 'Help Wanted' column of the classified advertising page of your local paper," is apparently the motto of modern recruiting officers.

That's how the 1st Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, Ottawa, got itself two cooks. In addition to the cooks, gunners and other recruits also answered the advertisement in the local papers.

Officers of the Battery reported that the classified 'ad' brought many inquiries. It was inserted shortly after the Battery was authorized for active service.

"We have had many inquiries as a result of the inch long notice," the recruiting officer said, "and were particularly pleased to obtain the good cooks."

You too can get or sell what you want by using the classified column in the "Pioneer."

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Reiber and family and Mr. Wm. Morrow, wish to thank their many friends for floral tributes, letters and cards received during their recent bereavement.

In a letter from our old friend Mr. J. A. McGee, he states that in spite of the bombardment from hundreds of guns during the hunting season, the pheasants around Brooks are still too numerous and farmers are complaining of destruction they cause to crops.

Organize Camera Club.

On Friday Oct. 24 a Camera club was organized, with Gordon Wordie as acting chairman. We discussed the activities of our following meetings and was decided that we each pay 25 cents fee for the year to buy a developing kit and develop pictures taken by the class pupils. We are to meet every Friday afternoon.

After several discussions of whether or not the high school pupils would be allowed to enter, it was decided keep the club within the Grade IX class.

Betty Bowman was elected President by acclamation, Reggy McFarquhar was elected Secretary, Betty Erickson, Charley Newton and Gordon Wordie are on the executive committee. A programme committee was elected for the following meetings. Contributed.
